MIC Global Risks

GRIEVANCE HANDLING POLICY

September 2025

V1.1

POLICY PURPOSE

These procedures are designed to ensure that employees who have any concern, grievance or complaint regarding their employment, have the right to have such concerns resolved. These procedures also serve to ensure that employees are aware of their rights under these procedures.

APPLICABILITY/SCOPE

This policy is applicable to all employees of the Company.

GENERAL POLICY STATEMENT

The Company places considerable importance on establishing good relationships with its employees and ensuring that they are treated in a fair and consistent manner. We recognise that in any organisation employees may have problems or concerns about their treatment, work, working environment or working relationships that they wish to raise. This policy exists to provide a mechanism for such matters to be dealt with fairly and speedily, before they develop into major problems.

Within the Company's Grievance Policy, employees also have the right to raise concerns about unfair workplace practices, or suspicions of criminal acts, miscarriages of justice and dangers to health and safety in accordance with local ordinances. All employees, who honestly and reasonably raise a grievance under these procedures, will at all times be protected from any detriment, as a result of their submission.

The Company reserves the right to vary the grievance procedure from time to time if it appears to the Company to be appropriate and to depart from the precise requirements of the grievance procedure when it is expedient to do so and where the treatment of the alleged incident is no less fair.

OBJECTIVES OF THE POLICY

The grievance handling process will be guided by the following principles & objectives:

1. Fairness and Impartiality: All grievances will be brought forward in good faith, truthfully and objectively. The same will be investigated thoroughly and objectively, without bias.
2. Confidentiality: Information related to a grievance will be kept confidential to the extent possible, shared only with those who need to know to facilitate a fair resolution.
3. Promptness: Grievances will be addressed and resolved in a timely manner as specified in this policy.
4. Respect: All parties involved will be treated with respect and dignity throughout the process.
5. Non-Retaliation: No employee will suffer adverse consequences for raising a genuine grievance in good faith, or for participating in a grievance investigation. Retaliation of any kind will be treated as a serious disciplinary matter and may result in immediate dismissal from employment.
6. Right to Representation: Employees have the right to be accompanied by a colleague at any formal grievance meeting.

PROCEDURE FOR ROUTINE COMPLAINTS & GRIEVANCES

First Step - Informal

Wherever possible routine complaints and grievances should be resolved informally through discussion with the aggrieved immediate line supervisor. Dealing with grievances in this way can often lead to speedy resolution of problems, but it is advisable for the individual and supervisor to retain a note of the informal meeting.

Key notes:

1. Attempt to resolve the workplace concern with your immediate supervisor.
2. Feedback should be given to the colleague within 48 hours.

Second Step - Formal

This stage and beyond, constitute a more formal and documented process.

Stage one

When a grievance cannot be resolved by your supervisor within 48 hours, you should put your grievance in writing to your immediate manager. Your manager should then invite you to attend a formal session (preferably in person) to discuss the grievance, with a solution to the matter being finalized within five (5) working days of the complaint being received.

The grievance should include a date of submission, employee name and department, clear and concise description of the grievance, including relevant dates and times, names of any individuals involved and any supporting documentation.

Stage two

If the matter is not resolved at stage one or you are unhappy with the outcome, you are permitted to raise the matter in writing with a more senior leader within the department (Director of your department), following the same steps as in stage one.

Do ensure that you copy your immediate supervisor and manager on the escalation.

The matter should be resolved within five (5) working days.

Stage three

If the matter is not resolved at stage two or you are unhappy with the outcome, you are permitted to raise the matter in writing to the Head of Human Resources – East Africa within 48 hours of the last stage with your divisional director and immediate manager in copy.

At any time within the "second step-Formal" stage, you may also choose to speak directly with a Human Resources representative for guidance on the grievance procedure steps.

Third Step - Formal

Formal Investigation: When a written complaint is brought to the Human Resources Department, an investigation will be conducted to ensure that all the evidence is collected to aid in resolving the dispute within seven (7) working days.

Resolution: A formal written conclusion based on the findings will be issued to the employee with the decision of what action was taken.

Where disciplinary action results from a grievance, the individual who submitted the grievance will not have the right to be informed of the specific action taken against the perpetrator.

Fourth Step – Final Appeal

If you remain dissatisfied with the decision reached by the Human Resources Department at the Third Step, you have the right to appeal this decision in writing to the Vice Chairman/Chief Executive Officer within five (5) working days of receiving the formal written conclusion.

Your appeal should clearly state:

- The original grievance reference
- The decision you are appealing against
- The specific grounds for your appeal
- The resolution you are seeking

The Vice Chairman/Chief Executive Officer, or their designated senior executive appointed to chair this stage of the process, will review all documentation from the previous stages and may conduct additional investigations as deemed necessary. This may include meeting with you and relevant witnesses.

The Vice Chairman/Chief Executive Officer will provide a final written decision within ten (10) working days of receiving your appeal. This decision will be final and concludes the Company's internal grievance procedure.

The Company is committed to ensuring that all stages of our grievance procedure provide a thorough and impartial review, maintaining our commitment to fairness, respect, and the proper resolution of workplace concerns.

The Right of Accompaniment

Employees have a right to be accompanied by a fellow employee and peer at any formal stage of the grievance journey, during the various grievance meetings within statutory definitions, and which concerns a complaint about the Company’s failure to treat the individual legally (for example bullying, or harassment, or failure to honour an individual’s contract of employment).

In order for the employees to exercise their statutory right to be accompanied at such a grievance hearing, they must make a reasonable request to the employer or Human Resources Representative within reasonable advance notice.

It would not be appropriate for an individual to request this right at an informal grievance meeting.

The accompanying person should be a fellow employee and peer. If the chosen representative is unavailable for the meeting, an alternative time must be fixed as reasonably proposed by the employee and which falls within five (5) working days of the time originally set by the company.

RESOLUTION TO PROBLEMS OR CONCERNS

We strongly encourage you to share your problems with us so we may help you resolve them. A colleague who loses time from his/her regular day's work as a result of the presentation and discussion of his/her problem will suffer no loss of salary.

The company has established this problem-solving procedure so it can be used freely and without fear of punishment of any kind.

Should you have a personal problem and need assistance, your manager/ Team Leader or Human Resources representative or company counsellor, are available to talk with you in confidence. The Human Resources Department maintains an extensive grievance resolution structure that may assist you in various areas and can refer you to the appropriate path needed.

FALSE COMPLAINTS

It is extremely important that all complaints & grievances brought forward either informally or formally are truthful and genuine. The Code of Conduct & Ethics spells out how we must always behave towards each other. Any complaint that is brought forward in bad faith and/or untruthful will be handled as per the Company's disciplinary policy & procedures.